Jordans 2019 Cheap is rumored to continue its "Hare" series in 2020 with an upcoming Air Jordan 6 "Hare" edition. Although no images of the potential release have leaked, the rendering you see here gives you an idea of what the shoe could end up looking like. Said to be inspired by the Air Jordan 7 Hare, look for the Air Jordan 6 Hare to come equipped with the classic multicolor tongue print and perhaps Bugs Bunny Jumpman branding similar to the mid-top edition of the Air Jordan 1 from 2015.

Not to be mistaken from 2017's "Alternate '91" Air Jordan 6 release, this Air Jordan 6 is expected to be modeled after the original "Hare" colorway of the Air Jordan 7. This Air Jordan 6 features a mixture of White and Grey across the base, Red is placed on part of the midsole, heel pull tab and other small areas. Lastly we have multiple shades on the tongue, partial translucent outsole with hits of Green.

The New Air Jordans 2019 rumor suggests that an Air Jordan 6 Hare release will be taking place sometime in 2020. The "Hare" color scheme was originally attached to the Air Jordan 7 and first launched in 1992 and last released in 2015. Over the years we have seen customs created of the "Hare" Air Jordan 6 and even back in 2017 Jordan Brand released the "Alternate '91" Air Jordan 6 which was first (and somewhat resembles) being called "Hare".
